

Cookies Policy

A New Dawn Organising is committed to ensuring that your privacy is protected.

This policy is effective from 29.09.2026.

A New Dawn Organising is responsible for this website and for deciding how personal information collected through it is used. You can contact me using the contact details provided on the website.

This website provides information about my personal organising services. It does not accept orders, payments or bookings. If you contact me with an enquiry, I will use the information you provide to respond and, where relevant, to take steps at your request before entering into an agreement.

How I use cookies

A cookie is a small text file stored on your computer, phone or other device when you visit a website. Cookies can recognise a device and remember information about a visitor's preferences or previous activity. They do not give me access to your computer.

This website is hosted by Webador (www.webador.com). Webador may place cookies or use similar technologies when you visit this website, including technologies used to provide the website, maintain security and measure website traffic. Current details of the cookies and similar technologies used, including their provider, purpose, duration and whether consent is required, are available through the cookie settings on this website.

Cookies and similar technologies that require consent will not be used unless you actively choose to accept them. You can reject non-essential technologies as easily as you accept them and change your choice later. Browser settings provide an additional way to restrict or delete cookies, but they do not replace the consent choices provided on this website.

Links to other websites

This website may contain links to other websites. If you follow one of those links, the other website will operate under its own privacy and cookie information. I do not control those websites, so you should read their privacy information before providing personal information.

Use and sharing of personal information

I do not sell or rent your personal information. I may share it with Webador and other service providers where this is necessary to operate the website or respond to an enquiry, or where disclosure is required by law. Further information about how I collect and use personal information is provided in the separate Privacy Notice available on this website.

You may ask for a copy of the personal information I hold about you. You may also ask me to correct information that is inaccurate or complete information that is incomplete. Depending on the circumstances, you may have other rights under the UK GDPR and the Data Protection Act 2018, including rights to erasure, restriction, data portability and objection. These rights are subject to legal conditions and exemptions.

If you have concerns about how I use your personal information, please contact me first using the contact details provided on the website. You also have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner's Office. Information about making a complaint is available at ico.org.uk/make-a-complaint.

This Cookies Policy explains the use of cookies and similar technologies on the website. The separate Privacy Notice available on this website explains how I use personal information supplied through enquiries or collected in connection with the website, including the types of information involved, the purposes and lawful bases for using it, who receives it, how long it is retained, any international transfers, visitors' rights and how to complain.

Reviewing or changing cookie choices

You can review or change your cookie choices at any time by reopening the cookie settings available on this website. Withdrawing consent does not affect the lawfulness of any processing that took place before consent was withdrawn.